PRODUCT PROMOTERS

Salary c.£23k
based in South Ruislip with UK travel

Ever wanted to be an ambassador for a world leader? At Yakult we've been part of people's daily health routine for over 75 years and now, as we continue to build the brand in the UK, we're looking for presentable, personable, passionate and confident people to be brand ambassadors.

A great opportunity to join an established multi-national organisation, you'll be promoting our probiotic drink at an array of indoor and outdoor events. Full training will be given to help you explain the benefits and Company philosophy to the public, whilst letting them try the product and handing out educational literature. This is a role where first impressions really do count. And, although based mainly in London and the South East, there will be some travel to other parts of the UK. The role will include working some weekends, with occasional overnight stays. Therefore, as well as being someone who enjoys striking up a conversation and someone that people instantly warm to, you'll need to be reliable and flexible with a high degree of professionalism and lots of energy.

In return, we'll offer you an attractive salary, and large company benefits, plus the chance to be part of a team that has lots of fun while generating sales.

Full driving licence essential.
